In early July, the Boys & Girls Club of Wiyot Country participated in a full day of surf camp on Moonstone Beach put on by Humboldt Ocean Adventures Surf School. It was a fun, sun-filled day of small to medium sized surf for the youth to practice their surfing skills. Most participants were returning surfers from previous surf lessons but the entire staff was more than willing to welcome and assist new and interested surfers. For more information on surfing lessons visit Humboldt Ocean Adventures website at www.humboldtsurfschool.com.

My Name is Meth

I destroy homes. I tear families apart. I take children and that's just a start. I'm more valued than diamonds, more precious than gold. The sorrow I bring is a sight to behold. If you need me, remember, I'm easily found. I live all around you, in school and in town.

I live with the rich, I live with the poor. I live just down the street, and maybe next door. I'm made in a lab, but not one like you think. I can be made under the kitchen sink, or in your Child's closet, even out in the woods. If this scares you to death, it certainly should. I have many names, but there's one you'll know best. I'm sure you've heard of me. My name's Crystal Meth. My power is awesome. Try me. You'll see. But if you do, you may never break free. Just try me once, I might let you go. Try me twice and I'll own your soul. When I possess you, you'll steal and you'll lie. You'll do what you have to, just to get high. The crimes you'll commit for my narcotic charms Will be worth the pleasure you'll feel in my arms. You'll lie to your mother, you'll steal from your dad. When you see their tear, you must not feel sad. Just forget your morals, and how you were raised. I'll be your conscience. I'll teach you my ways. I take kids from parents.

I take parents from kids. I turn people from God. I separate friends. I'll take everything from you, even your good looks and Pride. I'll be with you always, right by your side. You'll give up everything. Your family, your home. Your money, your friends, you'll be all alone. I'll take and I'll take till you've no more to give.

When I finish with you, you'll be lucky to live. If you try me, be warned. THIS IS NOT A GAME. If I'm given the chance, I'll drive you insane. I'll ravage your body. I'll control your mind. I'll own you completely. Your soul will be MINE. The nightmares I'll give you when you're lying in bed, And the voices you hear from inside your head. The shakes, the sweats, and the visions you'll see.

I want you to know, these are your gifts from me. By then it's too late, and you'll know in your heart, That you are now mine, and we shall not part. You'll regret that you tried me. They always do. But you came to me. Not I to you. You knew this would happen. How many times were you told? But you challenged my power. You chose to be bold. You could have said "no" and just walked away. If you could live over, now what would you say? My power is awesome, as I told you before.

I can take your mother and turn her into a whore. I'll be your master, you'll do as I say, even when I tell you to go to your grave. Now that you've met me, what will you do? Will you try me or not? It's all up to you. I can show you more misery than words can tell. Come, take my hand. Let me lead you to hell.

Wiyot Animal Stories

Do you know many Wiyot stories? I have featured a few of them on this page over the last year and a half, but you may have grown up hearing them from your parents or grandparents. Many traditional stories tell about how animals came to be the way they are. See how many of the following questions you can answer based on Wiyot tales (answers at the bottom of the page):

1. Why do We'n Hushurrenuwilh (Mole)'s front paws stick out sideways?
2. Why does Svinughurrilh (Sand Cricket, aka Jerusalem cricket or potato bug)'s face look 'peeled'?
3. Why does Hiwat (Abalone) have red streaks in its shell?
4. Why does Bitsoulaksh (Owl) hunt at night?
5. Why doesn't Gou'daw (Eel) have any ribs?

As part of trying to better understand the Wiyot language, I am continually working to make these stories more widely available in the community. I have printouts of all of the stories referenced above, and many more, which I would love to pass on to anyone who is interested. Stories are copied from Teeter, Reichard, and Kroeber and converted to standard spelling; I edit the English translations to make them more readable, but the Wiyot is as told by native speakers (Della Prince, Jerry James, and others). Audio is available for most of the stories and other texts told by Della Prince; please contact me for materials and more information!

lynnika@wiyot.us

1. The sky fell and he tried to hold it up, but it was too heavy.
2. She stuck her head in the fire after her child died.
3. She (Abalone was a young woman) was beaten by Rruney' (Dentalium), a young man; the red streaks are her blood.
4. His wife banished him to live in darkness away from people after he hid food from his family and they nearly starved.
5. He lost them in a gambling game with Juraghachk (Sucker).

A Short Film about Wiyot Country

As I mentioned in last month's language article, I am working on a project to map Wiyot place names. As part of this project, I am making a short film (~10 minutes) about Wiyot country and its native place names. I would like to include your input:

- What places in Wiyot country are special to you?
- Do you have a photo, video clip, artwork or story about one of these places that you would like to share?

This video will be shown to the fellowship sponsors and fellowship recipients from other Tribes, so it will not include any sensitive information (ceremonial sites, etc.). When finished, the video will be the property of the Wiyot Tribe, and copies will be available for any tribal member who would like one.

Please contact me if you would like to get involved!

Genographic Project

Don't miss your chance to participate in the Genographic Project, a National Geographic sponsored study that is exploring human ancestry and migration across the world. Two members of the Project, Theodore Schurr and Jill Bennett Gaiesski, have provided information to the tribe, and attended the Elder's Dinner and Intertribal Gathering at Redwood Acres last November to work with interested individuals.

The project is tracking human movements by studying DNA markers that women inherit from their mothers and men inherit from their fathers. These markers define lineages that are passed down through maternal and paternal ancestors in human families from the distant past to the present.

Through the analysis of DNA markers, we will be able to explore the ancestry and history of indigenous communities in the U.S., and assess their relationships to other first peoples in the Lower 48, Alaska, and Canada.

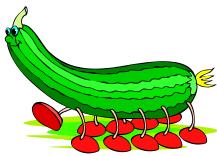

Participation in the project involves a consent process, an interview about your family history, and a cheek swab to obtain DNA for the marker analysis. Participation is free and information about your distant family ancestry will be provided to you. Participation in this study is entirely voluntary. Kits for your participation are available from Maura at the Tribal Office, or call 733-5055.

The Wiyot Tribe's Community Garden Update

The community garden has been slightly delayed from the June storms but we are very close to providing great, nutritious fruits and vegetables to the residents on the reservation. So far early vegetables, including lettuce, zucchini, sugar snap peas, chard, kale, and broccoli are close to being harvested and will be handed out to tribal residents and/or be used for community events such as the elder's lunch. The department plans to continue harvests into the early fall months before the winter frost occurs. Upcoming arrivals to look out for include: squash, cucumbers, pumpkins (in time for Halloween), tomatoes, green cabbage, bush and pole beans, cauliflower, and carrots.

Volunteers are always welcome to come and help out or if you are interested, just stop on by and we will be happy to give you a tour. If you have any questions, suggestions, and/or would like to pick up some information, call or visit the Environmental department.

The Importance of Water:

“Where You Live”

by Tim Nelson

In July, the Boys & Girls Club of Wiyot Country learned about nonpoint source (NPS) pollution in both the urban and rural environments. This lesson was then followed up by a guided tour around the constructed wetlands at the Potawot Health Village.

During the lesson, students learned about both urban and rural environments and how nonpoint source pollution affects each environment. To begin, students were taught that NPS pollution is pollution that is man-made or natural that is picked up by rain or snow and carried into a waterway. Unfortunately, NPS pollution is the primary factor affecting water quality health in the U.S. and offers challenges to identifying the source of contamination. The lesson was used to tie into previous lessons on watersheds and groundwater in order to show how NPS pollution in the rural/urban environment can affect the entire watershed. When describing the differences between the urban and rural environments, one key topic concerns the surface of the land. In more urban areas, the ground is almost primarily impervious as concrete, asphalt, roofs, etc. do not allow for the absorption of water. On the other hand, more rural areas contain almost primarily pervious surfaces such as grass, soil, sand, etc. In one city block the pollution generated from impervious surfaces such as roads and roofs can be nine times greater than a woodland area of equal size. This is due to the inability for water to infiltrate the soil but travel off roads, into storm drains, and dump out into our nearby waterways and eventually the ocean.

Both urban and rural areas have pollution issues but the large population densities combined with the large area of impervious surfaces makes urban areas a much greater concern in regards to nonpoint source pollution. In both urban and rural areas, the top pollutants of concern are hydrocarbons like oil and gas from vehicles, heavy metals from combustion and runoff from roofs, sediment from construction activities, trash, fertilizers and pesticides, etc. In Los Angeles alone, there are an estimated 26 million cars on the road! The amount of oil, gas, soot, and carbon output in urban areas is mind boggling when compared to smaller rural areas. Therefore, we as humans need to derive best management practices (BMP's) in order to deal with NPS pollutants. Since it would be impossible to halt every American from driving an automobile, we have created ways to deal with pollution as it is generated. For example, storm water retention basins act as catchment basins for storm water runoff from oil and gas slicked roads. Once in the basin, the water is held, treated by wetland plants, and slowly ejected either into another basin, into a field, etc. thus preventing pollution from entering our waterways. Other examples include buffer strips, permeable pavers on driveways, diversion trenches, silt fences, and many more.

...Environment Around Us

The Potawot Village once resided on wetland plains where the Wiyot people would traditionally come to collect plants for cultural practices. This land was then converted into pastureland for cattle raising thus eradicating the wetland habitat along with the culturally important plants. In order to address storm water pollution issues, the Potawot Health Village constructed wetlands around the center in order to catch hydrocarbons from the parking lot, runoff from the roofs, etc. The parking lot is purposely sloped toward vegetated areas that gravity feed the NPS pollution into culverts that drain into wetland ponds for treatment. Similarly, all the roof gutters empty into these treatment ponds where any heavy metals eventually settle to the bottom of the ponds and are treated by wetland plants such as azola, tule, horsetail, cattail, etc. Also, basket making demonstrations are held at Potawot and materials used (i.e. tule) come directly from the wetland itself.

These constructed wetlands are a great example at how we can adapt to the presence of NPS pollution by treating it on site.

For more information on NPS pollution, please call or visit the Environmental department.

Summer Fun

David Avruch began this month as Interim Program Manager, he has been getting settled. Jessica, Trena and Gary, have been very helpful to him by showing him the ropes.

Power Hour continued through the end of the school year under the leadership of Jessica, who tutored multiple Club Kids on a daily basis.

David is trying to figure out how to bring more structure to Triple Play, which yesterday comprised playing a version of badminton with a bouncy ball and today included a trip to the playground. While the school-age kids seem to be in "summer veg-out" mode, David is looking forward to introducing leadership-building group activities. While he is still getting to know everyone, however, he has been hesitant to separate kids into groups by age. Another factor is that most of the kids at the older end of the spectrum are boys, and the play they engage in is highly gendered, which makes group stuff a little trickier.

Girl Scouts and Wise Guys have continued under the leadership of Cheryl and Gary, respectively. Wise Guys is preparing for stick tournaments in the fall. The Girl scouts Cadettes/Juniors began a recycling drive this month as well as a heritage patch. The Senior/Ambassador girls held an end of school year slumber party, a trip to the midnight Eclipse premiere, and began a scrapbook of their journeys.

Average Daily Attendance:

16 days open. 342 children attended. 22 averages. If you would like to sign your child up for the program or have any questions about it drop in or call Michelle at the Tribal office (707) 733-5055.

Summer Food Program

Do not forget the Summer Food Service Program. Free meals will be made available to all children who are 18 years of age and younger at the Table Bluff Reservation Community Center (1000 Wiyot Dr., Loleta, CA 95551) beginning June 21st and will continue Sunday through Friday until schools reopen in the fall.

Breakfast will be served from 9 am to 10 am; Lunch will be served from 1-2 pm. In accordance with Federal law and United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) policy, this institution is prohibited from discriminating on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age, or disability. To file a complaint of discrimination, write United States Department of Agriculture, Director, Office of Civil Rights, Room 326-W, Whitten Building, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20250-9410 or call (202) 720-5964.

School supplies will be distributed at 3 pm on August 23rd and will be available by individual request until September 3rd. For eligibility questions please contact Michelle (707) 733-5055.

DON'T MISS IT!!!!

Their Calling

Written by Jenifer Norman 2010 (A proud wife a Wiyot Tribal Member and faller)

So early every morning they must rise

Way before most have to open their eyes

Driving usually long & far while still dark

Then there's the quad ride and hike from where they park

Rain or shine, their day is always hard & long

Their mind must be alert and their muscles strong

People with other careers should all be in awe

For it's amazing what they can/have to do with a saw

I'd like to see some men give just one of their days a try

They'd never make it! I bet it would make them cry

Having to pack up those mountains, hill after steeper hill

Every bone in body & muscle its gotta kill

They have to learn from experience, you can't just take some class

If it weren't for them, we'd have no houses or paper to wipe our *ss!

It's becoming harder & harder for them to make their living

When so many becoming against logging, only trouble their giving

It's becoming harder & harder for them to make their living

When so many becoming against logging, only trouble their giving

Those people are finding more reasons to protest

It's always some plant or bird & their nest

Like a woodsman's job isn't already hard enough

And those ones have nothing better to do then make it more tough

Boggled becomes their body and eventually also their mind

Somewhere the grounds always steep and the wind never kind

Their job will never not be challenging, they will always be a bind

Log after log they'll buck and chain after chain they'll grind

An occupation that's so hard & far from easy with all those days that'll end up breezy

Let's just hope that until retiring they will be out there cutting and falling

For those proud men...

The Timber Faller is their calling

BEST OF LUCK

Only Volunteers

The smell of Daffodils in a field during the summer....

In contrast now..its the smell of burnt rubber,

Waiting for "Shorty" hiking to the creek,

Couldn't wait for the cool water on our feet!

So later in life.. I decide to move..to the City of lights,

Bling, Bling and big boobs,

Pollution, traffic and rip-offs all proved me wrong ..in fact that the reason for this depressing song..!

As I head back to the Mountains, I glance in the mirror....,

THERE REALLY ARE NO VICTIMS..

ONLY VOLUNTEERS!!....

Next of Kin

Distance apart, I see a wounded heart...

As I read his words of wisdom, or are they crazy thoughts from prison?

I wonder how one could end up so wounded,

Or is it the torture of his own seclusion?

But as I read each word to the end-

I notice, Oh, it's Crazy Bear, my next of kin.
